Molloy by Samuel Beckett - Goodreads

Molloy is Samuel Beckett's best-known novel, and his first published work to be written in French, ushering in a period of concentrated creativity in the late 1940s which included the companion novels Malone Dies and The Unnamable. The narrative of Molloy, old and ill, remembering and forgetting, scarcely human, begets a parallel tale of the spinsterish Moran, a private detective sent in search ...

Malone Dies is a novel by Samuel Beckett. It was first published in 1951, in French, as Malone meurt, and later translated into English by the author. Malone Dies contains the famous line "Nothing is more real than nothing" - a metatextual echo of Democritus' "Naught is more real than nothing," which is referenced in Beckett's first published novel, Murphy (1938).

Molloy isn't the only Beckett work that leads you in one direction, only to lose its narrative "trajectory" to decay and stagnance. BE: I think it's more than apparent. It has something to do with Beckett's philosophical notion that we move from the cradle to the grave, that that's the only direction that anything moves, at least anything organic.
